BUSINESS SHOULD HAVE A FREE HAND

UNDER PROPER REGULATION AND SHOULD BE INDEPENDENT

Said President Coolidge At a Chamber of Commerce Meeting Held In New York City Thursday—He Emphasized the Desirability of the Largest Possible Independence Between Government and Business Under Proper Regulation and Control.

President Calvin Coolidge Thursday night at New York City, made an earnest and unqualified plea to the country to join the world court.

Speaking at the dinner of the New York State chamber of commerce, held in the Waldorf-Astoria, he told more than 1,000 business leaders that America could perform no service of greater value to international concord and peace.

The president's call to the United States to assume its place in the world ranks, stronger than any he had previously uttered, came at the close of an address in which he had surveyed the relationship of business to government and had outlined his opposition to overregulation of industry.

The future of the nation, now in the midst of prosperity unprecedented, demands the thorough development of business, the elimination of waste in materials and men, and the realization that business itself had purged itself of "trusts."

Even overshadowing internal progress, the president emphasized, was our progress in internationalism.

Two of the topics which the president dealt with in his speech were foreign loans by American bankers and the settlement of war debts.

He endorsed loans placed abroad which were to be used to establish and promote industry and commerce there. Continuing, he said:

"But when they are used in ways that are not protective, like the maintenance of great military establishments or to meet municipal expenditures which should either be eliminated by government economy or supplied by taxation, they do not appear to serve a useful purpose and ought to be discouraged."

Turning to the settlement of war debts, the president said:

"It has been the belief of the government that no permanent stabilization of European finances and currency can be accomplished without a definite adjustment of these obligations."

"While we realize that it is our advantage to have these debts paid, it is also realized greatly for the advantage of our debtors to have them finally liquidated."

He recorded as America's greatest accomplishment to date, the country's aid in the rehabilitation and the financial and economic reconstruction of Europe.

"Without already enormous, and constantly increasing interests abroad" he said, in urging the court, "there are constantly accumulating reasons why we should signify our adherence to the permanent court of international justice."

"Mindful of our determination to avoid all interference in the political affairs, which do not concern us, of other nations, I can think of no more reassuring action than the declaration of America that it will wholeheartedly join with others in support of the tribunal for the administration of international justice which they have created."

"I can conceive of nothing that we could do, which involves assuming so few obligations on our part, that would be likely to prove of so much value to the world."

"Beyond its practical effect, which you will receive concert with as much might be somewhat small, it would love as I send it."

have a sentimental effect which would be tremendous. It would be public notice that the enormous influences of our country were to be cast upon the side of the enlightening processes of civilization. It would be the beginning of a new world spirit."

GAS POISONING CAUSED DEATH OF SALESMAN

Howard Murray Expired and Woman Companion Was Semi-conscious.

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 19, (UP).—A verdict of "death due to gas poisoning" was returned by the coroner today in the investigation of the death of Howard Murray, 33, Indianapolis paint and varnish salesman.

Murray was found dead last night at the bottom of the steps leading to the Daniel Hansz apartment here. Police summoned to the apartment found Miss Leah Love, 26, in a semi-conscious condition.

Murray and Miss Love were guests at a party given by Hansz and Miss Mildred Ruschelle. Hansz and Miss Ruschelle left the apartment on an errand and when they returned, found Murray at the bottom of the steps and Miss Love in the apartment.

A leaky gas jet was blamed. Mrs. Murray arrived here from Indianapolis to take charge of her husband's body.

RED HAIR HER GLORY

Miss Irene Blakeman, a stenographer, has the prettiest red hair in the entire state of Kansas. This was the decision of judges in selecting her as queen of the red heads for the Kansas National Live Stock show at Wichita.

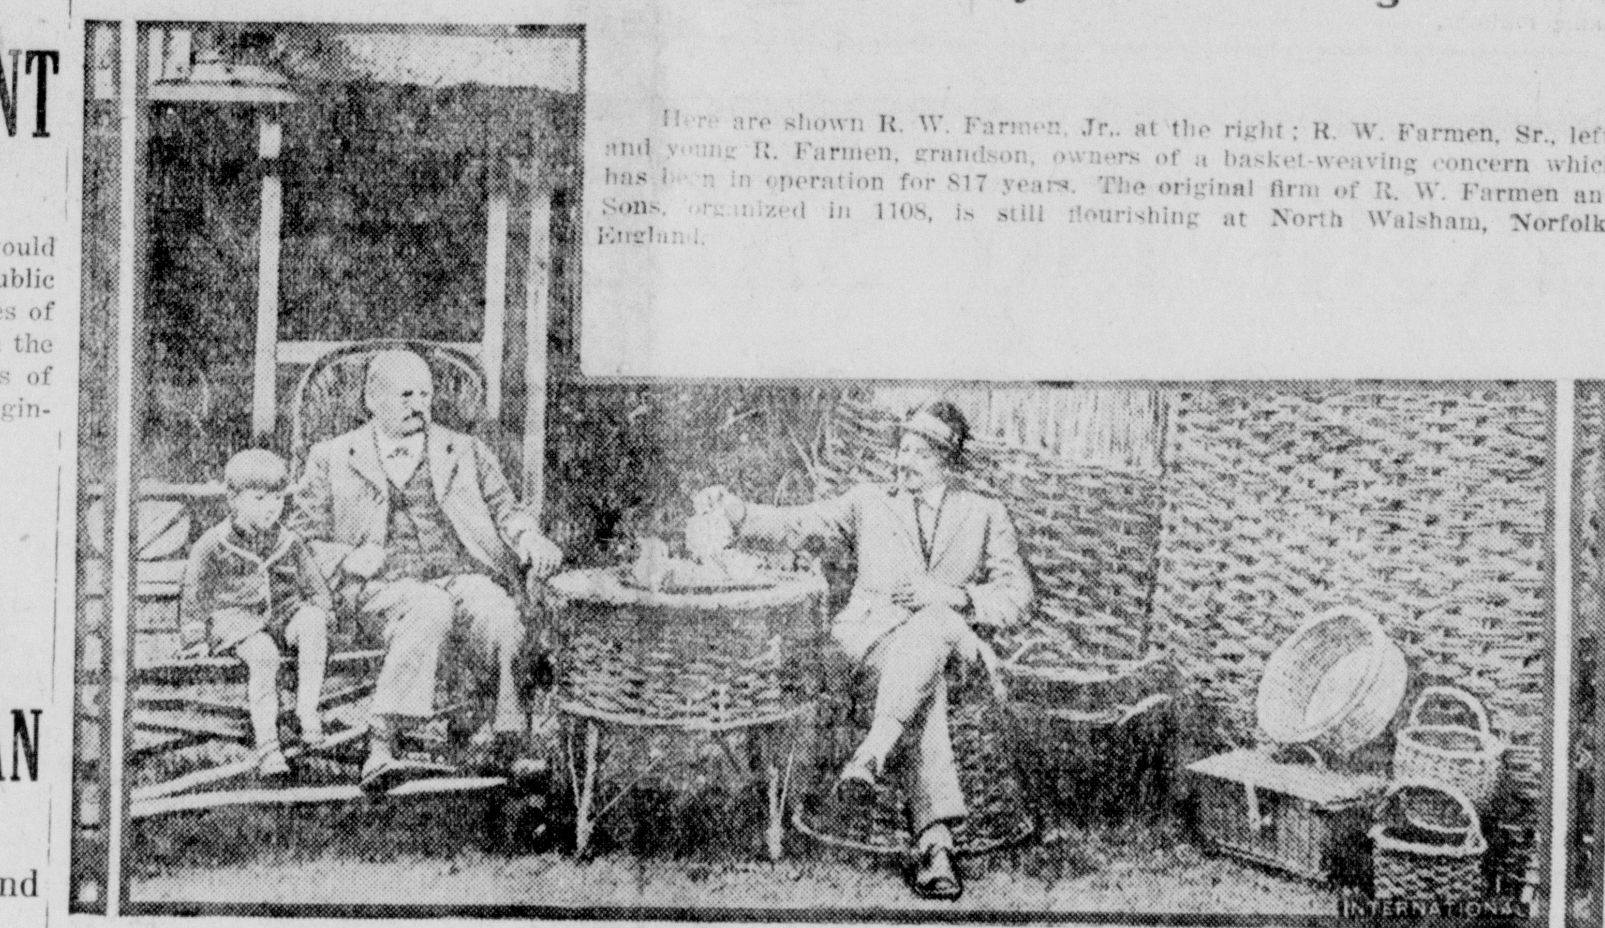

SMALL BLAZE.

The home of Clifford Miller on Edison avenue caught fire Friday morning. The alarm was telephoned in at 5:35 o'clock. The fire was located in the kitchen behind a range and the damage will amount to about $25. The house is owned by J. M. Wood, a resident of Florida. The loss is covered by insurance in the Fred R. Nicholas agency.

SINGING OVER RADIO.

Mrs. M. F. Reiche has received the following telegram from Dallas, Texas, from her niece, Mrs. Mary Robbins Hathaway:

"I am singing over radio Friday, November 20, 8:30 to 9:30 p. m. Trust you will receive concert with as much might be somewhat small, it would love as I send it."

"Fritz Kreisler" Came Back
—Piano Duets, Violin Selections and Debate.

Exceptionally interesting and successful was the second November meeting of Trinity Lutheran Brotherhood held Thursday evening in the social rooms of the church. The attendance was good and the spirit was at its height. After the formal opening and business session, the lunch committee served a much appreciated buffet lunch, consisting of corn muffins, sausage and oyster patties and coffee, with fresh rambo cider on the side.

After the half hour social session, President Brehmer called the meeting to order and introduced Carl Palm and Ralph Barnhart, who highly entertained with two piano duets.

The main feature of the program was a debate on the subject; "Resolved that the Pumpkin Show is more Beneficial than a first class Chautauqua."

The affirmative side of the question was debated by E. E. Wolf, Charles L. Mack and L. E. Goeller and the negative by J. R. Noecker, R. L. Brehmer and Harry W. Heffner.

The arguments both for and against waxed quite warm, twenty-five minutes having been taken up by either side. The decision was left to popular vote and resulted in the debaters for the affirmative winning in the ratio of nine to one.

Carl Leist rendered two fine violin selections with Carl Palm as accompanist. At the conclusion of the program, Harry H. Groce, in the role of "Fritz Kreisler" was introduced and provoked much merriment by the rendition of several old-time violin numbers. John W. Walters had charge of the musical part of the program.

The next regular meeting will be held on Thursday evening, December 3, at which time the program will be as follows:

"Public Schools of 40 Years Ago"..... H. H. Groce
"The Sunday School of 40 Years Ago"..... H. S. Heffner
"The Church of 40 Years Ago"..... J. C. Goeller Sr.
"Business Forty Years Ago"..... W. E. Crist

"Social Gatherings 40 Years Ago"..... John Ahn

Music will be in charge of C. O. Leist and Frank Gordon will have charge of the culinary department.

U. S. Tourists to Cuba to Get Tax Exemption

Havana.—Citizens of the United States will receive the same privileges given Cuban citizens by the immigration authorities, under a recent department ruling.

The treasury department has exempted tourists and other travelers from payment of the one-quarter of one per cent tax on money above $50 taken out of the country by travelers. Secretary of the Treasury Cartaya authorized steamship companies to issue identification cards to passengers, which, on their leaving the country, absolves them from either making a statement as to the amount of money they are carrying or payment of the tax.

Realtors Used Modern

Ad Methods in 79 A. D.

New York.—The to let "ad" in 79 A. D. was not totally unlike our own in phraseology, but painted conspicuously in red and black letters on the sides of buildings, and was in vogue in Herculaneum and Pompeii, according to reports of excavators who have been uncovering ruins of the ancient cities buried in 79 A. D. One such advertisement is said to have been translated as follows:

"On the estate of Julia Felix, daughter of Spurius Felix, are to let from the first to the sixth of the Ides of August on a lease of five years, a bath, a venereum and ninety shops, bowers and upper apartments."

Birds Feast on Plane

Wenatchee, Wash.—A flight of migrating grasshoppers encountered the airplane of Leo Waldron, fire ranger, while soaring over the Wenatchee forest and clung to every portion of the machine. Large numbers of swallows immediately began to feast off the stowaways.

CREEK INDIANS USED NO JAILS

Lash and Gun Constituted Only Penalties.

Okmulgee, Okla.—The ancient whipping tree and the old capitol of a vanished Indian nation still are doing service in this city.

In the heart of Okmulgee stands the council house of the Creek nation, erected in 1878. The Young Men's Christian association and the chamber of commerce have their headquarters in the building, and a bus line uses one corner for an office.

The building and its grounds occupy a block in the center of the business district. Among the numerous trees on the grounds are two where the executions and the legal whippings took place.

The Creeks had no jails. They had only two methods of punishment—whipping and shooting. The punishment for robbery, for instance, was 50 lashes for the first offense, 100 lashes for the second, and death for the third. In cases of execution, the condemned Indian was tied to the tree and shot.

Damage suits were settled in cash, work or 50 lashes on the bare back.

The council house is a two-story building of native sandstone. On the first floor were the departments of government; on the second, the legislative halls.

The Creeks were one of the five civilized tribes moved by the government from the southeastern part of the United States to this territory about 1830.

They established here a complete system of government, similar to the American republic, but with much simpler forms.

Their legislature was composed of the "house of kings" (senate) and the "house of warriors." The head of the state was the principal chief, elected for four years by a majority vote of the males of the nation. His assistant was the second chief elected in the same manner.

There was a high court and a district court, each district having a prosecuting attorney, a judge and a company of light horsemen, who were in the nature of mounted police.

The council house belongs to the city of Okmulgee. Efforts are now being made among the remaining Indians to move the building to a national Indian park planned near here.

Empress of Japan Takes Care of Own Silkworms

Tokyo.—The empress is as much devoted to sericulture as are the numerous women of Japan's rural districts. There is a special cocoonery constructed in the palace compound and, since the beginning of the spring, the empress has personally busied herself with taking care of the silk worms and feeding them on mulberry leaves.

The transfer of the matured silk worms to the cocoon beds of the royal cocoonery will be made shortly and it is estimated that the cocoon yield this year will be no less than 50 bushels. By order of her majesty the cocoons will be taken to the Tokyo silk reeling school to be converted into silk thread. When this is done the silk skeins will be sent to the higher technological school at Kyoto to be carefully woven into habutae. It is said that the emperor now wears a kimono woven from this habutae cloth which came from her majesty's cocoonery.

—WE SAVE YOU MONEY—

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

AMUSEMENTS

Found: That "something different" in motion pictures you've been looking for.

If ever there was a movie out of the ordinary, it is the William de Mille-Paramount production "Lost—a Wife" which is the feature at the Metropolitan theater.

"Lost—a Wife" is an adaptation by Clara Beranger of Alfred Savoir's Broadway stage success, "Banco." Adolphe Menjou, Great Nissen and Robert Agnew are featured in the leading roles in the cast.

The story is one of Tony Hamilton, a young American traveling in France Hamilton (Menjou), known as "Bet-a-thousand" Tony, is happy only when he has a wager on his hands, and if there's nothing else to bet about he'll bet with friends on whether it is going to rain or not or something equally as foolish.

Anyway, he meets Charlotte Randolph, being dragged unwillingly across the continent by her mother in search of a title. Hamilton first sees her name on the hotel register and after losing a thousand dollars when he bets that "her face is awful"—this before he sees her—he becomes deeply interested in the girl, and it isn't half an hour before he's betting friends that she never marries the duke her mother has picked out for her and even goes so far as to wager that he will marry her himself that very night. His friends take the bet, thinking he is crazy. Ensuing scenes, however, prove otherwise.

There's a honeymoon at Monte Carlo, a misunderstanding, a divorce followed by a reconciliation in some of the most unusual scenes the screen has ever seen—perhaps the most unusual of these being when Menjou arrives at the church too late to prevent Miss Nissen's wedding to the count. It's a real laugh—not for Menjou, of course.

"Lost—a Wife" is notable for the fact that it marks Great Nissen's first screen appearance. Paramount has done a lot of talking about this Norse newcomer lately, and when you see the picture you'll agree that they have something to talk about. Menjou gives his usual finished performance in this one, and Bobby Agnew is a convincing juvenile.

Edgar Norton, as the count who marries Miss Nissen when she throws Menjou over, gives a great comedy characterization. Others in the cast are Mario Carillo General Spagnoli, Eugenio di Liguoro, Henrietta Floyd, Toby Claude and Marcelle Corday.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From Wires By Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

(United Press)

Georgetown—The jury to try William Wilson, negro who is accused of slaying Sheriff George Kellum, was completed here Thursday. Kellum was shot and killed last October while attempting to arrest Wilson on a liquor law charge. Wilson fled to Kentucky where he was captured. The state will demand the death penalty, prosecuting attorney said.

Cleveland—Four firemen were overcome by smoke in a fire that partially destroyed a three story building here Thursday. Patrons in a nearby hotel were routed. The building was occupied by three manufacturing concerns. Dense clouds of smoke forced the firemen to work in relays.

Cleveland—An entire hillside in the Auburn avenue district here is slipping away and a landslide that will carry at least four houses over a cliff into the Cuyahoga river valley is imminent, police announced.

The houses were abandoned Thursday by the occupants who removed their belongings from the danger zone. Foundations of the buildings were crumbling and a landslide make take place any moment, building inspectors called to the scene, warned.

Toledo—Pennsylvania passenger No. 444, Toledo to Pittsburgh, crashed into a string of freight cars at the Walbridge terminal early Thursday.

Mrs. E. B. May, Carrothers, Ohio, was the only passenger reported injured. She continued the trip without medical aid.

The Real Question

"Just this way, sir," said the courteous clerk in the railway ticket office. "Let me show you some summer guides entitled, 'Where to Go' and 'When to Go.'"

The man with the modest income shook his head.

"They don't interest me," he sighed.

x HARTMAN THEATER. x x x x x x x x x

People like to be kept guessing. Curiosity, the love of the mysterious and baffling in our natures, the desire for thrills, have made the mystery play a fixed part of the playgoer's rations. Human nature is pretty much the same and the trend of plays has been such, since the medieval "miracle plays" that the present day mystery play occupies a very secure place on the stage.

"Spooks," the mystery thriller coming to the Hartman theater, Columbus, for the week of November 23, is a different type of mystery play from "The Bat," "The Cat and the Canary" and "The Gorilla" in that it plays up the "spooky" elements and the traditional manifestations of the unseen world, rather than killings.

"Spooks" comes to Columbus after long and successful runs in New York at the Cort theater and in Chicago at the Playhouse.

Coates Gwynne heads a talented New York cast, composed of Ethel Tole, Dixie Loftin, Ruby Blackburn, Carl Way, Cliff Clifford, Alma Blondo, Robert LaLonde, Arthur Olmi, Alfred Atwell and John J. Schwarz.

A delectable detective puzzle will be served, enlivened by some new tricks, with some amusing banter, references to radio and a love climax to make the whole thing a savory dish to set before playgoers.

Matinee on Thanksgiving day and Saturday. Mail orders will be given prompt attention.

Outdoor Cellar for Vegetables

Site for Structure Should Be Convenient, Preferably a Hillside.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A permanent outdoor cellar for storing surplus vegetables may be built of concrete in most localities at a moderate cost, by using concrete it is possible to make the roof self-supporting, thus lessening the cost of construction. The site for the structure should be a convenient, well-drained location, preferably a hillside, into which the cellar may be built. The excavation should be just large enough for the dirt walls to serve as the outside form for the concrete. For that portion of the wall which is above the surface of the ground an outer and inner board form must be used. The inside form usually is made of boards held in place by scantling spaced about eighteen inches apart. Temporary supports should be placed across the top to carry the form, so that it will be of the size and shape desired.

Walls and Roof.

The side walls and roof should be so constructed that there will be no joints to weaken the structure. The form for the ceiling may be slightly arched by setting a temporary line of posts through the middle of the excavation. A plate placed on these posts a few inches higher than the height of the side walls will allow the form boards to be laid crosswise of the cellar, springing the ends down and securing them to the forms for the inside of the walls. An arch a few inches high makes a strong roof and helps in ventilating the cellar. The roof and the walls should be respectively 10 inches and 8 inches thick. Both roof and walls should be reinforced with 3/4-inch iron rods.

In the colder sections of the country, the exposed portions of the structure, with the exception of the door located at the outside end, should be covered with a two or three-foot layer of earth to prevent freezing. A supplementary covering of straw, fodder or manure will afford additional protection from the cold. An earth floor is desirable, as this permits good moisture conditions for the storage of many vegetables. A framework of slats or removable slat flooring on which to set containers holding vegetables should be placed on the dirt floor, as such an arrangement affords a better circulation of air in the bottom of the cellar. As a means of admitting cool air from the outside, a pipe or duct of suitable size should be run just below the level of the floor from a point outside the cellar to the center of the floor. A ventilating flue for the escape of warm air should be placed in the roof. During extremely cold weather both ventilator and air inlet should be closed to prevent freezing of the vegetables. The outside end of the air duct should be covered with wire screen to prevent the entrance of small animals.

Capacity of Cellar.

A cellar 10 feet wide, 12 feet long and 8 feet high will contain the products of an acre garden. A cellar longer than this will require more than one ventilator. The products of the average small home garden, built in the same manner as the one outlined above, can be stored in a cellar 6 feet wide, 8 feet long and 7 feet high.

Farmers' Bulletin 879, Home Storage of Vegetables, which contains instructions and plans for constructing several types of storage cellars, and Farmers' Bulletin 1279, Plain Concrete for Farm Use, giving information relative to the mixing and use of concrete, may be obtained free upon request, while the supply lasts, by writing the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington.

Soy Bean Seed Threshed With Grain Separator

Soy beans can be threshed more efficiently with a pea and bean separator than by any other means. With this machine there will be a minimum of unthreshed and split seed. However, an ordinary grain separator properly adjusted, will thresh the crop very well. By the use of two special pulleys, the speed of the cylinder should be reduced to 300 or 400 revolutions per minute, and the fan, shaker and screens run at normal speed. In addition, about half the cylinder teeth and all the concaves should be removed, substituting boards for the latter. Each of these adjustments should vary somewhat with the variety and the condition of the beans. When the whole crop is of the same variety and is well cured, the grain separator can be adjusted to do a very satisfactory job. The oats screens should be used for all varieties. A machine with a slatted straw carrier is more satisfactory for this purpose than one with a wind stacker.

Rodents Eat Much Feed

Some owners of swine pay little attention to the rats that run riot in the hog house, especially in the feed room and about the hog yards and feeding places. They have become accustomed to them, regard them as a nuisance but scarcely worth fighting, "as they always come back." They recognize that there is some loss of feed from rats and mice but do not, as a rule, perhaps, remember or understand the other mischief they make.

Might Also Show Intelligence.
Perhaps some of the senators and representatives feel that to agree too readily to a tax bill would cause them to lose some of their political individuality.—Indianapolis News.

CLARENCE COON

Died at His Home in Urbana of Paralysis--Native of Pickaway County.

After an illness of nearly a year with paralysis, which seized him while on North Main street last December, Clarence A. Coon, 56, retired Urbana business man passed away at his home 114 Lafayette avenue, Sunday about 4 a. m. His condition, while wavering at times and showing slight improvement was never at a point where hope for recovery was ever fully established. However, the news of his death caused a distinct shock in a wide circle of church, business, fraternal and social circles where he was prominent for many years.

Mr. Coon was born April 26, 1869, at St. Paul, Pickaway county, Ohio, the youngest of a family of nine children born to Mr. and Mrs. George Coon, well known farmers of that district. He received his early education in the township schools there and later taught school, giving up the profession to enter business with his brother, Clinton T. Coon, now of Piqua. They established themselves at Hilliards in 1890 and five years later came to Urbana and purchased the Happersett Brothers store and stock for several years conducted it as a partnership. The brother went to Piqua and set up a separate business there and is still a leading shoe merchant there. The Urbana brother conducted his business successfully for several years alone and about four years ago sold out to Reed and Hanna the present owners of the store in the southeast angle of Monument Square. Following his retirement he devoted his time to his farm and other investments.

Mr. Coon's business activities expanded and he had been for several years a director in the Perpetual Building & Loan association, of which he was president at the time of his fatal illness. He was also prominent in Masonic circles, a past master of Harmony lodge, No. 8, F. & A. M. and member of the Chapter Council, Commandery and of the Dayton Consistory, Scottish Rite Masonry, the latter having charge of the ritualistic services at the home Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Harmony Lodge will hold a brief, ritualistic service at the grave in Oak Dale cemetery where the body will be interred. Dr. H. W. Barr, of the Presbyterian church will conduct religious services and Humphreys & Son will have charge of inment. Besides his Masonic affiliations Mr. Coon was an active and valued member of the Jr. O. U. A. M. and Launcelot Lodge, K. of P., in Urbana. Mr. Coon was prominent in the Presbyterian church, serving as elder for several years and superintendent of the Sunday school for 15 years. He was also president of the County Sunday School organization for several years.

Mr. Coon was married in 1897 to Miss Gertrude Powell, who with a son Wilson, survives. The Piqua brother, Clinton, and a sister, Mrs. Sarah Jane Fridley, Ashville, Ohio, are the only surviving brothers and sisters. — Urbana Democrat.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

Separate Coat in New Winter Modes

Garment Should Be Chosen
With Future Costumes
in Mind.

Always excepting the new hat, or the new little frippery that is needed to add a piquant air to the plainness of the costume that is a legacy from the season past, the separate coat is far and away the most important acquisition of the new mode. Against its background—of fabric, color and line—will be built the costumes that the season to come will demand.

And these separate coats differ very little, if at all, from the ensemble coats bought as a part of a costume suit. They fall, naturally, into the same divisions of the suit, some model of which is possible for every occasion of the day from early morning until late evening—or early morning again! For they are military, sports, semi-formal and formal, with a generous representation of tailored types.

It will be readily seen that the separate coat is an economy, since it may be chosen with future costumes in mind, and its color may be, in a way, a dependable one, against which gaiety and brightness and unusual shades may be silhouetted. If it is to be really serviceable, it must not be chosen in one of the "off" shades—let the frock be chosen thus—but in a tone that will harmonize with many other tones.

Since one's first impression of the costume ensemble is the outer wrap, it may truly be said that the outfit will stand or fall by the coat of it! And the very fact that more of these costumes are made up of contrasting fabrics than all of one material adds appreciably to the value of the separate coat. For the cloth coat may have a dress of any fabric, and velvet combines with cloth, crepe or silk.

And popularity of the ensemble or of harmonizing colors, is another factor in the success of the coat design.

Charming Coat of Cloth Is Trimmed With Mink.

signed for general wear with a variety of dresses, resulting in a variety of costumes. And designers of coats—playing up to the ensemble idea—have made individual selection enticingly easy.

The warning—New coats feature materials with a soft, rich pile. And there will be a deal of velvet, if fashion displays have been any indication. The wools and velvets alike are remarkably supple and easy to manipulate.

Plisse Effects Seen
in American Fashions

Where the straight silhouette appears in this season's fashions it does not have the uncompromisingly severe lines of last year, but is given a certain fluid grace by cleverly concealed gores and platings. Plisse effects, which always have been featured in French frocks but which recently only have been made an integral part of American fashions, frequently are seen.

One reason for this is that since the plisses are usually put in by hand it is a long and tedious process. But designers have found that the results more than justify the time taken in making them.

Many are extremely intricate and suggest honeycomb effects or smoking, while in others there is an appearance of diagonal or herringbone stripes.

Hints on How to Make Footwear Comfortable

Buckled shoes are sometimes loose round the instep. If the portion of leather to which the buckle is sewn is unsewn and firmly stitched a little further back inside the shoe, this will tighten it, and give greater comfort to the wearer.

Shoes a little too big and which rub may be made comfortable by fixing a small length of narrow ribbon velvet in the heel of the shoe with seccotine or a pair of little fixtures sold at most shoemakers for the purpose.

If a patent shoe pinches any part of the foot a rag soaked in boiling water should be placed over the part while the foot is in the shoe, and the leather will soften to the shape of the foot.

BEAUTIFUL---YES BUT WILL IT WORK?

With its beautiful lines, and mahogany finish, the Estate Heatrola is indeed very beautiful. Folks quite often mistake it for a high-priced phonograph. MISTLETOE BANNED

Experts in the federal department of agriculture at Washington have decreed the extermination of the mistletoe. Orders have been issued for its complete destruction in all national forests. States will be asked to co-operate in eliminating it from the list of growing things in the nation. The mistletoe is charged with being a dangerous forest pest, a disease breeder and distributor, patron saint of an epidemic that would do immense damage to trees and plants in the forests and on the farms. Branded as an undesirable citizen, it is to feel the weight of governmental displeasure, will be banned from society good and bad alike.

Some way it seems that many people are eager to keep themselves busy all the time taking the joy out of life, upsetting some of the popular conventions and customs of life, making us change our habits and revise our list of friends. For ages mistletoe has been one of the cheery decorations for the Christmas season, in this and other countries. Just a little sprig of it, hung on the chandelier, or over a doorway, adds a touch of sentimental importance and completes a model picture as homes are made ready for the season of good cheer. What a wealth of tender sentiment clings to it, how welcome it has been, how popular it has become! And what a change! A national pest, a foe to all growing things in the woods, it has been declared an outlaw and the full force of a great government is being employed to bring about its quick destruction. It has been a fixed feature of holiday decorations. What may we have in its stead? Must we lose all that abundant sentiment that clusters about it? Those experts may be right. Mistletoe may be an alien enemy, but they should give us something to fill the picture when we dress the home for the holiday season.—O. S. Journal

OHIO FARMERS SHIPPING MANY WALNUT LOGS

Farmers in Ohio are now selling $2,500,000 worth of walnut logs every year as a substantial part of the income from diversified farms. Largely for that reason the United States Department of Agriculture has published a bulletin for farmers under the title "Selling Black Walnut Timber."

Black Walnut grows best on agricultural lands and manufacturers of walnut lumber and veneers depend upon the farmers for their supplies of logs, the author of the bulletin, Warren D. Brush, scientific assistant in the Forest Service, points out in discussing black walnut as a farm crop.

"Manufacturers want black walnut because of qualities no other wood has in the same combination. It works well with tools. It holds its shape in seasoning. It shrinks, swells and warps very little in the finished product. It takes a good finish and when finished has very attractive appearance."

"Black walnut trees bring higher prices than any other kinds of timber grown on the farm," Mr. Brush points out "and these prices have been increasing since 1915. Walnut is primarily a good wood for cabinet work and furniture making of all kinds. Other cabinet wood as well as walnut are growing very scarce. This has the effect of increasing the price of walnut and its value will in all probability continue to rise."

Heat with Distinction

At last it is proved that a home heater can be good looking—ornamental, if you will—as well as a practical heat-producing utility.

The Mueller Furnacette marks the greatest advance in home heating equipment since the invention of the heating stove. It is the joint creation of master furniture designers and skilled heating engineers. There is distinction in every line of its well-balanced, walnut-grained, vitreous enamel cabinet.

And as for heat—never was there an above-floor heater of any kind that could compare with the Furnacette in heating efficiency! It heats the whole house by continuously re-circulating warm, moist air thru all the rooms. It provides more comfortable, more uniform heat than two or three stoves combined, yet uses no more fuel than an ordinary heating stove.

FINDS CULTURE IN KAMCHATKA

Petropavlosk, in Eastern Siberia, Up-to-Date City.

Seattle, Wash.—The impressions that Kamchatka, Siberia, is a land of desolation, inhabited only by Eskimos and bears, is far from the truth, Capt.
Albert Grove, commander of a fishing schooner recently returned from the region, declared here.

"I was very much surprised at the conditions existing in Petropavlosk," Captain Grove said, "for I had an entirely different idea of the place before we arrived there last May. They have fine schools, splendid sanitary conditions, well-paved streets, modern machinery, radio, motion pictures and practically everything any metropolis enjoys.

"Their schools are particularly efficient. I was told that nine years ago only 30 per cent of the population could read and write, whereas now over 90 per cent of them, both adults and children, are well advanced in the rudiments of schooling.

"So efficient were the schools there that Kenneth Price, a Seattle high school boy in my crew, requested permission to remain in Petropavlosk for a year to study special branches, and I allowed him to do it.

"The people of Petropavlosk are strong for outdoor sports, and persons of both sexes, young and old, take a keen delight in the almost weekly contests waged in the city stadium.

"The fisheries of Kamchatka are a Japanese concession, but the agreement seems to be administered most amicably."

SHIP IS TOWED BY BIG WHALE

Alaskan Monster Weighs About 100 Tons.

Tacoma, Wash.—The greatest whaling season ever experienced at Alaskan stations has been recorded this year, declare skippers, whose vessels are arriving here for winter wharfage.
Close to 500 whales were caught and processed during the summer. Whaling, which began off Kodiak island
May 1, kept 18 ships busy for months, about 40,000 barrels of oil and an enormous quantity of fertilizer being prepared for shipment. No ambergris was found this season.

The largest whale harpooned this season measured 86 feet. The world's record whale is 98 feet 6 inches.
The Alaskan monster, weighing about 100 tons, straightened out 400 feet of heavy hauser, besides towing the whaler seven miles before tiring out.

Whales were attracted to Alaskan waters this season, it is believed, by large schools of small fish, squids and halibut. Years when these species are abundant, whales are numerous. Sperm whales arrived in large numbers.

It is now thought the feeding grounds for sperm and finback whales lies off the coast of Africa, and by the end of October practically all of the Alaskan leviathans will have started for winter haunts.

The whale oil from the season's catch has been marketed in the East with soap makers, steel and leather manufacturers.

A shipment of 300 salted whale tails were brought down destined for Japanese markets where this section of the mammal is as popular as turkey in America.

Sparrow Bait Lures 4,400 Cats to Death

Tokyo.—The Tokyo police recently arrested a man charged with killing 4,400 cats by baiting them with live sparrows. He is Minakichi Noguchi, and his operations, he told the police, have been confined mainly to the Honjo district, where cats are as scarce as steam heat in Japan.

The police were at a loss to know why Noguchi had a penchant for snaring cats until he explained he was the official supply source of catgut to artisans who make the shamisen or three-stringed Japanese musical instrument, which is covered with catgut in addition to having strings of the material.

Noguchi says he gets about 2 1/2 cats each for catgut yielded by one cat about $1. He can buy live sparrows for a cent or two each, and an old sparrow brings in more than two or three cats, especially if he is quick enough to rescue his bait before the cat gnaws it too extensively.

The cat trapper was released when the police failed to find an ordinance covering baiting of cats by sparrows, however disastrous it may be for Tokyo who lives in a land where catgut is in such demand.
